Castle Cary Scarecrow Festival

If you were walking down the streets of Castle Cary in Somerset and saw John Wesley riding a unicorn, you could be forgiven for thinking you were dreaming. But this vision is real and it is one of more than 120 scarecrows that are on display in the town as part of its first Scarecrow Festival this July.

Girls' Brigade chaplaincy

"I find it important to be an emotionally available presence for the girls, answering any questions they may have. As someone who represents Jesus in that space, I aim to make their faith feel relevant and approachable."

Deacon Helen Gardner shares her experience as the Girls' Brigade Chaplain in the Lincolnshire Methodist District.

Methodists at Silverstone

Methodists were busy at a very different sort of circuit last weekend when they hosted a wellbeing space trackside at the Silverstone Grand Prix.

The volunteers, led by the Evangelism and Growth team, held conversations and Silverstone Methodist Chapel opened its doors to visitors with an invitation to refuel. Julie Siddiqi MBE, Founder and Director of Together We Thrive, shared with them as they welcomed guests of all faiths.

Eric Gill's Annunciation displayed

Annunciation, c.1912 by Eric Gill from the Methodist Modern Art Collection © TMCP

Eric Gill's Annunciation, part of the Methodist Modern Art Collection, is being displayed as part of the 'It takes a village' exhibition taking place at the Ditchling Museum of Art + Craft.

In a ground-breaking initiative, survivors of abuse advised the Methodist Church on the future of the watercolour, Annunciation, that was created by the controversial sculptor, typographer and printmaker, Eric Gill, who sexually abused two of his daughters.

The exhibition is on until 1 February.

Churches and mosques together for peace in Togo

"My prejudices about Christians have been shattered. Thank you for bringing us together and transforming our relationships with one another," the senior Imam beamed as he spoke to Christian and Muslim local leaders, women and young people.

The Revd Andrew Ashdown, Partnership Coordinator for Africa, experiences dialogue and coexistence in areas of conflict in Africa during a visit to Togo.

Conversations Against Mundanity

for anyone who wants a proper chat

Watch this animation and learn how discussions can get a little 'more real' using Conversations Against Mundanity, the new game from Methodist Publishing.

A good conversation can unlock parts of us that little else can. There's nothing wrong with chatting about the everyday – it's what fills most of our lives after all – but those don't tend to be the conversations we remember. Instead, we remember when we were honest enough with one another to open up and say something real and true.

This game kickstarts those kinds of conversations.

Are you using Artificial Intelligence?

The Methodist Conference has asked for work to be done on Artificial Intelligence to help formulate reflections, guidance and policy for the Methodist Church. As part of this work, the AI Working Group has created a short survey for members and circuits to feed back and share experiences with the group.

What are your thoughts on the theological and pastoral issues AI raises?

Does it support or complicate your ministry practice?

Are there issues around ethics, privacy or data that we need to pay attention to?

Please complete our short survey by Saturday 19 July.
